Information

- Executive Social Event:
 - When: Friday at 6:30 PM
 - Who's coming?
 - Ibrahim, Nojan, Justin, Michaela, Dan, Jana
 - Where are we going?
 - At the Mint
 - No LSS money will be spent there
- Grad Clothing Update:
 - The clothing company has finally got in touch with Dan and Ivelina and the company is planning to deliver on their missed deliveries.
 - Dan and Ivelina are contacting students who've had missed deliveries
 - Dan and Ivelina are planning to do a second grad clothing sale
- Grad Event:
 - Ivelina is in the process of hiring a photographer for grad
- Social Coordinator Update
 - Janessa says it went smoothly and the cost of it was reasonable because Deryk Kuny got us a membership rates for the ice rental and the drinks
 - There will likely be some profit from this event. We might be planning on giving the profit money for the purposes of Grad given that grad clothing sales didn't have a significant level of profit
- Fridge Cleanings

- How can we give more notice?
 - Sandy: some students are having concerns with regards to a lack of notice of when the cleaning is going to be.
 - Sandy: we can send Facebook blasts to the 3 social groups on the day of the cleaning reminding students that there's a cleaning.
 - Everyone is in agreement on doing these Facebook posts.
 - Dan: maybe we should have more supplies added
 - Sandy: we have bought more and replaced the old empty ones
- The condition of the bathrooms on the main floor
 - Sandy: there has been concerns among students about the cleanliness and condition of those bathrooms. These concerns have been brought up with the Dean.
- AGM Agenda
 - Sandy: I'll bring agenda for AGM next week for everyone to see and approve.
- Issues with having reps for business in sessions and lectures on campus
 - Sandy: There has some instances of businesses coming in and using campus space to make their business pitch. Should the LSS develop any policies on this? Is this something that we should look at?
 - Justin and Nojan: This is not necessarily much different from law firms coming in and making their pitch. Furthermore, it may be too paternalistic for the school to prevent businesses from doing this.'
 - Ibrahim: Law firms may be different than actual businesses such as tailors because law firms are trying to hire students as oppose to sell something to them.
 - Kyra: Maybe we can have a policy where the clubs must just have a disclaimer before their presentation saying that they are not endorsing this company specifically and that there are other companies that they may look at if they wish to get similar services.
 - Sandy: Law firms are also different in the sense we see multiple law firms as opposed to just one firm.
 - Jana: There have been other situations where the university has specific businesses. For example, during health and wellness week a massage therapy business was giving free massages but also making their pitch to come to them in the future.
 - Sandy: The University can't be seen as picking one company over another and that's what may happen when have only one business owner coming in from a certain field (ex. Tailors).
 - Sandy: The administration should give us more clear guidelines on what types of businesses and reps are and are not allowed on campus.
 - Justin: It's important for clubs to be able to fill in gaps that the LCO or the administration is not filling in. These events that the club run are providing a service for students by giving them valuable information. We don't want to create a chilling effect that might stop clubs from running valuable and creative events that will aid students.
